THE motion picture adaptation of the Charles Dickens' immortal characters which opened last night at the Grand is a lasting tribute to the thoroughness with which the Lasky studio filmed this great Paramount picture. "The World Against Him" will live eternally as a story in the screen version the characters are again brought to life and experience a new mortality, for once enacted before the camera they are unchangeable.

Sincerely appreciating the responsibility which devolved upon them in making a permanent reproduction of the characters the Lasky studio before filming one foot of it made a painstaking study of authoritative data on London at the time of which Dickens wrote. In addition to starring Marie Doro, who had already created a sensation in the stage version of the play during the Dickens centenary in New York in 1912, the producers engaged two of the best known character actors for the important roles of Fagin and Bill Sikes in the persons of Tully Marshall and Robert Bosworth.

The result is a splendid work and the Grand's audiences yesterday fully appreciated it.

For the want of room in this column last week we had to forego the pleasure of saying something about the off-stage side of Bob Hilton, who was the funny man with "The Passing Parade" Company, which occupied the stage at the Hippodrome last week. "Bob" is an ex-newspaper man and hails from Frisco. He is one of the most active fellows we have seen essaying stage parts in many moons. While his activity didn't loom up anywhere near as big as did that of Jimmy Brennan, who averaged about six characters to each bill, it was because "Bob" does his biggest part outside the theatre. He is a playwright, a promoter and writes dramas and comedies between meals just as freely and with apparently as much ease as a street car conductor collects nickels. He told of his literary prowess to us and his works included nearly everything of note that has been developed in a half century. We were just trying to think of what he didn't write and for the life of us we can't think of a thing excepting the Bible, and we are not so sure but what he hasn't at least revised that somewhat to conform to his own ideas of classic literature.

He is with his company at Zanesville this week, and it would hardly be fair to let an august personage like Mr. Hilton get out of our mind without putting him on record for something.

The theme of "The World Against Him," which is at the Grand today, deals with the unwritten law and with a strange romance which begins after, instead of before, marriage.

The main idea in this plot is ingenious and the sort of thing that one type of audience might consider "strong" and another "morbid." At any rate, the spectacle of the weird wedding to a condemned man in the shadow of the prison walls, is at least original, which is a rare quality in this type of play. The incidents which lead up to the murder are also unhackneyed and gain the sympathy of the audience for the hero who takes the law into his own hands, although the wisdom of presenting an appeal to the "unwritten law" is questionable. The delightful outdoor settings in the midst of pine-covered mountains are a refreshing contrast to the prison, hospital and death-bed scenes.

E. K. Lincoln is grim and determined in his scenes as the avenger and in his cave-man wooing. June Elvidge is a somewhat passive heroine as Alice Ridgely. An effective bit of work is done by Ruth Findlay, excellently cast as the invalid sister.

"The Beloved Vampire" at the Nelson today is a Fortune Photo-play product and is one of the latest pictures of its class. It is also different and decidedly novel in many phases. It is a Knickerbocker star feature and Margaret Landis and Clifford are cast in

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine. It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking just a few small strands at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this the leading parts. Aside from the appealing character of the play it contains an element of native distinction because the whole production was supervised by two former West Virginians, the Horkheimer Brothers who came from a well known Wheeling family. The Balboa Studio in California is the result of their individual enterprise, and only recently we had occasion to print something said in praise by Senator Goff who spent a big portion of the winter in the far west and was a frequent visitor to their plant. In addition to this headliner there are two entirely new comedy features included in today's program. One is an Essanay production called "The Shooting Star" and the other features John Lancaster in "Mr. Bingo, the Bachelor."

The Bluebird Company continues to please audiences. The midweek bill concluded last night featured Jack Fuquay as a funny Irishman, the first red-faced one that has been at the Hipp in some weeks.

Tonight "The Haunted House" will be presented and it is said to be unusually strong in comedy.

The company is one of the best in the Zarrow string. It is supplied with an excellent chorus of uniform prettiness and all able singers and dancers. The costuming is superior to the average.

There are a number of catchy musical numbers conducted by the company's own musical director.

BE SURE YOUR VOTES

The Campaign Manager on Wednesday night and the keys delivered to the chairman of the judicial committee.

6. The final count will be made and the awards made by a committee of three reliable and disinterested business and professional men of Fairmont. The names of the Judges will be announced on Thursday of the final week. The Judges will break the seal of the Ballot Box and start the final count at soon after nine o'clock on the evening of the 14th as is possible to do so. The Judges will proceed to count all reserve votes in the ballot box, and will then add their totals to the totals of the Campaign Manager's final count as appearing in The West Virginian on the final Thursday. The result of this count will be the basis on which they will make the awards, according to the rules of the campaign.

7. If there is, in your mind, any error in the final count of the Campaign Manager appearing in the issue of The West Virginian of Thursday afternoon of the final week, any contestant claiming such error, must notify the Golden Festival Manager in writing not later than five o'clock in the afternoon, of Friday, the day preceding the close. Failing to notify the Golden Festival Manager will be considered absolute legal acknowledgment that the count of the Golden Festival Manager is correct up to that time.

8. Do not trust to the mails on the last day to bring to your reserve votes or any late subscriptions. Every vote to count on this campaign must absolutely be in the ballot box promptly at the stroke of nine o'clock, Western Union Time, Saturday night, the 14th.

9. Do not ask any inside information in regard to the standing of any candidate, for none will be given under any circumstances. No one knows anything about the standing of any candidate but the candidate in question. All will receive the same fair and impartial treatment that has been a feature of this Golden Festival. All awards will be made strictly on the merits of the campaign.

10. The last day of the Golden Festival every candidate must have his final subscriptions written out in his receipt book and a vote blank properly filled out, all amounts of votes extended, and proper cash totals. The Golden Festival department will be snowed under with work on the last day, consequently will have no time to help do the candidates' work. All subscriptions not properly filled out will be rejected, so if you haven't blanks enough, be sure to get enough before you turn in your final report.

11. If you have any question to ask, or anything you desire looked up, you must attend to this before two o'clock in the afternoon of the last day. No time will be taken after that hour to answer questions or look up other matters, until the Golden Festival is closed.

12. When the hour of 9 o'clock in the evening, Saturday, arrives, every candidate, or anyone else who has any subscriptions to turn in, must be in the Golden Festival Manager's office. At 9 o'clock the door of the Manager's office will be locked for 10 minutes, until the names of those who have any subscriptions to turn in have been taken. All who are in the office at that time will be locked in, and all who are not in the office will not be allowed to enter. After the list of those who have money to turn in has been taken, each will be checked up by the Golden Festival Manager.

13. The closing hours will be trying ones on the Golden Festival Department, owing to being compelled to work under great pressure. The Golden Festival Manager therefore asks all the candidates and their friends to assist as much as possible in facilitating the work by refraining from loud talk, and other disturbing noises; not to bring anyone with you who has no business to transact; to have everything ready. You and your friends are more than welcome at all other times.

14. In turning in your final report at 9 o'clock, have everything ready to do as not to cause the slightest possible delay for the rush at the closing hour will be great. When you are being checked up for the last time at 9 o'clock, be sure not to misplace any subscriptions, or forget them for you cannot come back again to turn in subscriptions, after once being checked up at 9 o'clock. Of course you should get as much of your business in before 9 o'clock as possible. This only bears on your final report. Every one who wants to win will be working right up to the closing hour for so close is the race that this will be the only way winners can be decided.

15. No vote coupons can be mailed to outside candidates after Wednesday morning of the final week. The Golden Festival department will place all votes in the sealed ballot box received after that time, for fear they might not reach candidates in time to be returned.

THE WRONG PRINCIPLE

From the New York Times.

The Secretary of the Navy has requested the newspapers not to publish the arrivals of ships. The New York Times will comply with this request, but there devolves upon us the duty of pointing out that the Secretary is proceeding upon the wrong principle. This wrong principle is that the American people should be deprived of information which the enemy can easily get, for hereby the rectification of mistakes may be made more difficult. Any one interested in knowing when a ship arrives can find it out whether the newspapers print the fact or not. It is not a secret; nothing can be a secret which is known to a whole waterfront and to anybody with a telephone. German agents will know it as soon as any one else. They should not be allowed to send the information to Germany, and the censorship, therefore, should be rigid on outgoing messages at the cable and telegraph offices. To leave it out of the newspapers will not even hinder the German spies, and will have no effect except to deprive the people needlessly of a convenience.

However, it is not the needlessness and uselessness of the restriction that interests us, but the apparent disposition to act upon a wrong principle which, if not abandoned, may do harm. If this principle had been accepted in its fullness, there would have been no mention of the fact that the St. Louis had arrived with evidences of being inadequately prepared for defense. The publication of such defects is necessary for their correction. Not unless the people and their representatives are informed of such things can they move to rectify errors. It may be important for the enemy to know that our ships are not properly defended, but it is far more important that we should know it and know it at once. It is highly important that we should know what we are not doing, and the Secretary's first step in this direction seems to be on the principle that throughout the
